Which? podcast goes organic

Is organic food worth the money? Does it offer health benefits? And how much more will going organic cost you? The answers to these questions and more are revealed in our latest podcast.

We also discuss which TV listings websites give the best service and the advantages they have over printed guides.

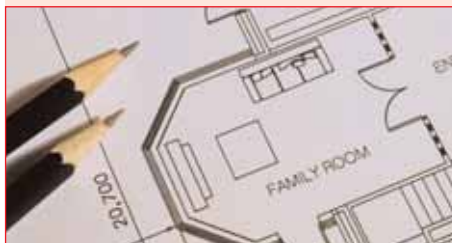

The podcast – which also looks at new technology and consumer news – can be downloaded at www.which.co.uk/podcast

Room for improvement

If you've ever embarked on a major home development project, you'll know there's plenty to think about.

In a new series of reports on which.co.uk, we've covered everything from funding a project to employing builders, including what to do should things go wrong.

Plus you can find out how to plan for a new kitchen or bathroom, and how to buy and lay wooden flooring. Visit www.which.co.uk/homeimprovement for the full range of reports.

WHICH? AWARDS 2008

The Which? Awards, a celebration of the best products and services in the UK, are taking place soon – and you can be first to find out who comes top in this year's hotly contested categories on which.co.uk.

We'll have the results online shortly after the winners are announced at the British Museum on Tuesday 17 June.

This year's 12 award categories reflect the breadth of Which?'s research, ranging from domestic appliances and financial products to cars and broadband providers.

Head to www.which.co.uk/awards to see the nominees so far.
